Jennifer Miller is Grammarly's General Counsel. She focuses on enabling Grammarly to grow and innovate while carefully managing business risk. Her responsibilities include everything from navigating AI and regulation to scaling the company's managed business.

As a lawyer, Jennifer knows the importance of thoughtful, clear, and precise communications. She's thrilled to play a role in furthering Grammarly's mission of improving lives by improving communication.

Jennifer thrives at supporting companies undergoing explosive worldwide growth while developing innovative and disruptive technologies. Before Grammarly, Jennifer led legal, compliance, operational safety, and risk management teams as General Counsel and Chief Legal Officer of Starship Technologies. She also served as General Counsel and Head of Government and Regulatory Affairs at Loon and previously held roles at Cisco, HP, and Gigamon.

Jennifer has been recognized by her peers for her achievements, including as one of Women We Admire's Top 50 Women Leaders in San Francisco (April 2022) and as a 2020 Corporate Counsel/Law.com Women, Influence and Power in Law awardee.

She received her law degree from Georgetown University Law Center, a master's degree from The George Washington University, and her undergraduate degree in politics and religion from Mount Holyoke College. Jennifer lives in Mountain View, California, with her husband, two sons (when her oldest is home from college in Vermont), and their Standard Poodle.
