

Ayan Mandal Joins Grammarly as Vice President of Product

San Francisco, Calif. – September 11, 2013 – Grammarly, the leading writing enhancement app, announced today that Ayan Mandal has joined its executive team as vice president of product. Mr. Mandal will build Grammarly's product team and drive product strategy and development.

"Grammarly was just named to the Inc. 500 list of fastest growing private companies, and I am thrilled to join such a high performing and fast growing team," said Mr. Mandal. "I am especially looking forward to building new products and recruiting exceptional people so that Grammarly can help many more writers."

Mr. Mandal was most recently the director of product management at Lookout, the world leader in mobile security, where he was responsible for the Company's award winning mobile security application with more than 45 million users. Prior, he served as the lead product manager for Google Finance, growing the site to more than 500 million page views per month. Mr. Mandal earned a Bachelor of Arts in Computer Science and Economics from Cornell University and a Master of Business Administration from Harvard Business School.

"Grammarly improves lives by improving communication," said Brad Hoover, CEO at Grammarly. "Mr. Mandal is a highly skilled product leader who will accelerate our progress towards this goal. We are thrilled to have him on our team."
