

Brad Hoover

CEO

Brad is CEO of Grammarly and focuses on product, strategy, team building, and culture. Previously, Brad was an investor at venture capital firm General Catalyst Partners, where he worked with high-growth consumer Internet, SaaS, and mobile companies as a board member, adviser, recruiter, business development resource, and adjunct team member. He was also a consultant with McKinsey & Company and with Arthur Andersen. Brad holds a BS in operations research and industrial engineering from Cornell University.